

OSCN CONTACT PERSONS

Become the OSCN contact person for your faculty / department!

OSCN is a learning community for people in the area of Nijmegen with an interest in Open Science. This includes people from four different research institutes (Radboud University, Radboud University Medical Centre, Max Planck Institute, and the University of Applied Sciences Arnhem Nijmegen). Given that the implementation and/or discussion on Open Science tends to differ across disciplines, we are looking for local Open Science contact persons in every faculty and/or department of all involved research institutes (so, quite a lot of people!). As contact person, you would be the connection between your faculty/department and OSCN. Being a contact person is an informal role: you don't need to take on major responsibilities, but you help keep the conversation about open research alive within your department. This way, OSCN ensures representation across all faculties and the facilitation of activities tailored to the needs of our community.

Are you an OSCN member and would you like to take on this role? Let us know! If we don't find (enough) volunteers among our current members, we will actively reach out to (new) people in the coming period.

What does the role involve?

All contact persons will be listed as such on the OSCN website, making it easy for others to know who to contact within their department. This helps spread ideas and experiences about Open Science. Additionally, if you'd like, there's room to actively contribute ideas, help organize (local) events or initiatives, or suggest topics. OSCN can provide support and resources to facilitate these activities. Interested or want to learn more? Get in touch via openscience.nijmegen@gmail.com.

Spread the word – help Open Science thrive in your department!

SHAPE THE FUTURE OF ACADEMIC PUBLISHING

Ever thought about what the future of publishing should look like? Would you like to help build a fairer, more robust, and sustainable publishing future in the Netherlands? Now is your chance by giving your input to the new national open access strategy!

Whether you've been publishing your academic work for years or are preparing your very first paper, you've likely encountered one or more of the growing challenges in academic publishing: rising costs, limited academic control, inequitable models, and outdated systems of recognition and reward. These issues aren't just inconveniences – they are barriers to the sustainability of and access to academic research.

The Association of Universities in the Netherlands \(UNL\) is therefore working on a new national Open Access strategy– and we are gathering input about the publishing concerns, needs and preferences of the research community of the Netherlands. You can fill out this survey (10-15 minutes) anonymously until December 31, 2025. Feel free to share this opportunity with fellow researchers across disciplines and institutes. The broader the input, the stronger the strategy!

OSCN COMMUNITY MEET-UP

Next week, it's time for another edition of the OSCN Community Meet-Up. We will meet at the Cultuurcafé on Thursday November 20th, starting at 16h. This will also be the last community meet-up of 2025 (but don't worry, we will be back next year!).

All - members and non-members - are welcome to chat and have a drink. Don't feel like joining by yourself? Just invite a colleague to come with you. We are looking forward to meeting you (and your colleague). As always, we can be found near our banner :D

NEWS FLASHES

- Are you working on a project that might be of interest to our community? Do you organize (of know of) an event that fellow members might want to join? Do you wish to share a publication or open tool? You can now easily share this kind of news with us via a 'sharing form' (link on our website). We will help you spread the word via the OSCN newsletter and our LinkedIn account.
- This year's Open Science Barcamp and Festival were a great success. The network of Open Science Communities in the Netherlands (OSC-NL) wrote a blog post about the Barcamp. A report on the Festival can be found here. Both are highly recommended if you are thinking about joining (one of) these events next year in Delft.
